“I counsel my clients on all IP and technology matters with their bigger "business" picture in mind.”

Mr. LaPrairie is a highly experienced attorney concentrating his practice in intellectual property law without losing sight of the ever-evolving business needs of the client. He focuses his practice on obtaining and enforcing patents and trademarks for clients, with particular emphasis on global patent representation for multinational corporations in a wide variety of mechanical, electromechanical, and chemically oriented technologies. Mr. LaPrairie counsels clients on different strategies for managing their global IP portfolio with the goal of optimizing allocation of their IP budget. He also works closely with clients to assess a wide variety of clearance/freedom-to-operate issues, regularly providing opinions for non-infringement and invalidity. Mr. LaPrairie has significant experience preparing and negotiating key agreements for clients, including joint development and license agreements. Additionally, he relies on his technical experience to counsel his clients on compliance with U.S. export regulations and the associated license requirements.
