“I’m a transactional attorney who assists clients in navigating business transactions and operational matters.”

Aaron concentrates his practice in business transactions and corporate matters, including M&A transactions, transaction-specific contractual matters, and documenting and negotiating everyday business arrangements. In addition to his broad transactional experience, Aaron also has significant experience representing clients operating in the healthcare space, including M&A deals (closely held and private equity transactions), navigating a full range of contractual and daily operational matters, and regulatory aspects of various arrangements and transactions.

Aaron takes great pride in understanding each client’s unique needs and working to achieve favorable outcomes.
