“I am an attorney who advises clients on complex business matters, including issues related to data privacy and construction.”

Brian advises clients on compliance matters regarding data privacy regulations, including the European Union's General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), the California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA), and data breach requirements created by various states, as well as the drafting of privacy notices.

He advises and represents clients involved in the construction industry regarding contract formation, payment issues, bid protests, mechanic's lien claims, and bond claims. Brian has represented owners/developers, general and subcontractors, and suppliers in all facets of construction.

Brian currently serves as a neutral with the American Arbitration Association's Construction and Commercial Panels.

Representative Matters

- Represented a specialty equipment supplier on a public works project involving a case of first impression on the issues of application of statutory releases under Nevada law and the use of equitable fault analysis being used to reduce liability under a security interest or mechanic's lien claim. The Nevada Supreme Court ruled in favor of the supplier and held that the district court erred in finding that the waiver, even though termed unconditional, was unenforceable, pursuant to the language of the pertinent Nevada statute, against the lien claimant. Likewise, the Supreme Court found that "equity" may not be used to reduce the value of a security interest or mechanic's lien held by a claimant.
- Represented mechanic's lien claimants on multibillion-dollar hotel-casino bankruptcy lien litigation and resulting certified question to Nevada Supreme Court regarding issues of first impression addressing equitable subrogation and subordination between mechanic's lien claimants and construction lenders who hold deeds of trust. A successful ruling was received in favor of the mechanic's lien claimants, which established that Nevada would adopt a minority position where mechanic's lien claimants would be favored over construction lenders in situations in which a lender paid a prior existing encumbrance.
