“I am a litigator focused on aiding in my clients' business success through strategic and creative problem solving.”

Claire is a litigator focused on general business matters. Claire utilizes her creative experience as a former ballet dancer by thinking outside of the box to help resolve clients' disputes.

Claire earned her undergraduate degree from Rutgers University and graduated with her J.D. from Michigan State University College of Law. While in law school, she served as Articles Editor of the International Law Review and competed in numerous moot court competitions with the MSU Board of Advocates. She also served as a Research Assistant and Bluebook Evaluator, supporting Intellectual Property Law research and providing feedback to first-year students.
