“ I leverage my experience to deliver strategic, informed solutions that meet each client’s unique needs.”

Jorie advises businesses and individuals on U.S. Virgin Islands tax, residency, and economic incentive matters. She helps clients secure benefits through the U.S. Virgin Islands Economic Development Authority and the University of the Virgin Islands Research & Technology Park, guiding them through eligibility, compliance, and ongoing operational requirements.

Her practice includes forming and advising exempt companies, counseling clients on bona fide residency for tax purposes, and assisting with federal and territorial filing obligations. Jorie also represents companies involved in large-scale, federally funded construction projects and supports clients operating within the territory’s expanding blue economy sectors, including charter operations, marinas, and waterfront hospitality businesses.

With a practical, business-oriented approach consistent with the firm’s mission to deliver efficient, value-driven legal services to commercial clients, Jorie provides tailored guidance to help organizations navigate the unique legal and regulatory landscape of the U.S. Virgin Islands.
